UPDATES REGARDING COVID-19

Burger King® South Africa is closely monitoring the situation and taking important steps to help protect the health and safety of our guests and team members.

HAND WASHING
Team members are now required to wash their hands every 30 minutes at a minimum as per virus spread prevention guidelines. The BK® brand has provided training and is requiring all team members to sign a personal hygiene commitment form.

CONTACTLESS
Delivered pans and trays will be used to collect payment and distribute orders to avoid direct contact between Team Members and Guests. Every 30 minutes, Team Members will wash, rinse and sanitise.

PROFESSIONAL MANAGERS are now using a Corona Virus Prevention Checklist as well as processes to ensure all team members are continuing to be properly trained, to understand, and adhere to the new procedures.

CONTACTLESS DELIVERY
To support social distancing and W.H.O. Food delivery guidelines, true contactless. Bags will be placed on a surface indicated by you, the driver will then back away and allow you to pick up your order yourself. Cash payments have been deactivated. We encourage customers to use credit / debit card, instant EFT or eBucks.

FOOD SAFETY
In line with the World Health Organisation’s guidelines we have implemented enhanced hygiene practices. All drivers are temperature tested daily at each of the driver hubs. Drivers bags are frequently cleaned, all drivers have access to hand sanitiser with clear instructions to sanitise their hands before and after each delivery or collection. Protective masks have been rolled out for all drivers.

According to the World Health Organisation, there is no evidence to date that people can contract COVID-19 from food or food packaging. Restaurant partners are encouraged to follow the World Health Organisation’s health and hygiene guidelines and to ensure food is appropriately packaged for delivery.

1. Customers are able to request no-contact delivery by using the “leave at door” button at checkout. Make sure to update your app to use this feature. You can also include special instructions like “drop off in lobby” in the notes section of the app.

2. For a limited time, the cash payment option will not be available through the Uber Eats app. The card stored in your account can be used to pay for your order.

3. You can now give directly to the restaurants you love at checkout. 100% of your contribution will go to the restaurant. Thousands of restaurant workers and delivery people have been affected by this crisis. It’s easy to show your support using the Uber Eats app.

4. You can also thank and tip your delivery person in the app after each delivery. They’re working hard to get your food and essentials to you.

5. Since the outbreak, delivery people have received sanitiser and mask reimbursements and Uber has made information and guidance which include helpful tips to all app users on fighting the virus.
